Introduction and overview

President's foreword

The FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022 provided an opportunity to celebrate football, more specifically national team football, in what proved to be the best and most exciting FIFA World Cup ever.

Together with the players and the fans, clubs play a crucial role in making the FIFA World Cup the pinnacle of our game. In this respect, the FIFA Club Benefits Programme recognises the contribution that clubs make to the success of the FIFA World Cup, and this far reaching initiative ensures that FIFA redistributes a portion of the revenues from the competition to the clubs.

A testament to the growing reach of this programme is the fact that clubs from all six confederations received a share of the benefits from the last FIFA World Cup, with a total of 296 clubs releasing players for the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022, illustrating the global impact of the tournament.

Looking ahead, following the renewal of the memorandum of understanding with the European Club Association, the amount redistributed to clubs will further increase from USD 209 million for the 2018 and 2022 editions of the FIFA World Cup, to USD 355 million for the 2026 and 2030 tournaments, recognising yet again the importance of the role played by clubs.

I hope this report will help to visualise the profound impact that this programme has on club football, in line with our mission to further develop football all around the world, making it truly global.

Yours in football,

GIANNI INFANTINO

FIFA President

Introduction

By releasing their players to their respective national teams, clubs indirectly play a key role in the successful staging of the FIFA World Cup™. The FIFA Club Benefits Programme is the landmark programme through which FIFA financially rewards these clubs and acknowledges the profound impact that they have in helping to make the FIFA World Cup the premier sports competition in the world.

Following the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022™, a total of USD 209m was distributed to the clubs that released players, as well as to the clubs with which these players were registered in the two years leading up to the final stage of the FIFA World Cup (i.e. the qualification phase).

In total, 440 clubs from all around the world received a share of the USD 209m.

While a significant portion of these funds went to European clubs, it is worth underling that many small- and medium-sized clubs from every corner of the globe benefited from this programme. This is in line with FIFA's stated ambition and objective to create a more competitive and sustainable football ecosystem, in which a larger number of clubs are able to compete at the highest level. Through this programme, many clubs have the possibility to benefit financially and to reinvest their share into their own sporting development.

The global reach of this programme and the redistribution of the financial benefits to many small and medium-sized clubs from every region of the planet, makes FIFA proud of the impact that the FIFA World Cup can have on so many clubs and stakeholders all around the world.

To name a few examples of clubs that benefited from the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022:

- / 5 clubs from Tunisia received USD 1,494,734
- / 11 clubs from Costa Rica received USD 3,380,946
- / 3 clubs from Mexico received USD 4,736,975
- / 6 clubs from Australia received USD 2,031,305
- / 8 clubs from Greece received USD 2,473,885
- / 10 clubs from Korea Republic received USD 3,379,121
- / 5 clubs from Ecuador received USD 822,195

1. How do clubs receive a share of the benefits?

Simply releasing players for the competition does not automatically entitle a club to receive a share of the benefits. To be eligible, clubs first need to register for the programme through a newly established digital platform.

Ahead of the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022, FIFA communicated the registration process through FIFA circular no. 1812.

2. How much does a participating club receive?

The total amount available (USD 209m) is divided by the total number of days that all of the participating players spent at the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022 (approximately 19,080), which results in an amount of USD 10,950 per player per day (209m divided by 19,080).

This amount is then multiplied by the number of days that each player spent at the final competition of the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022, starting from their release for the tournament and ending on the day following the last match of the player's representative team.

It is important to note that it is not relevant whether a player was fielded in any given match; in other words, all of the players from the same representative team end up with the same per player per day amount.

ORNELLA DESIRÉE BELLIA

Director of Professional Football
Relations and Development

3. Practical example

The following practical example serves to help the reader understand the distribution mechanism underpinning the FIFA Club Benefits Programme. It focuses on the real-life example of Hiroki Sakai and the clubs that were rewarded for his inclusion in Japan's final squad for the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022.

A. Identification of eligible clubs

Japanese defender Hiroki Sakai was registered with Japanese club Urawa Red Diamonds when he was released for the final squad of his representative team, which meant that the club was eligible to participate in the FIFA Club Benefits Programme and receive a share of the funds from the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022.

However, the programme also rewards the clubs where the player played over the previous two years (i.e. during the qualification phase). Therefore, as Sakai was also registered with French club Olympique de Marseille during the 2020/2021 season, they were also eligible to receive a share of the benefits resulting from his participation in the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022, even though he was no longer an Olympique de Marseille player by the time of the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022.

	2020/2021 Season Olympique de Marseille (FRA)
	2021/2022 Season Urawa Red Diamonds (JAP)
	FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022 Urawa Red Diamonds (JAP)

This process was repeated for all of the players who participated in the final competition, with the FIFA administration undertaking research to identify with which club(s) a player was registered, both at the time of their release for the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022 and in the two years leading up to the final competition.

B. Calculation of amounts

All of the players in the Japan squad participated in the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022 for a total of 23 days, which resulted in a rounded amount of USD 250,000 per player. In the specific case of Hiroki Sakai, this amount was then distributed to the clubs identified through the above mentioned process, with the total amount allocated as follows:

	2020/2021 Season Olympique de Marseille (FRA) USD 83,333
	2022/2023 Season Urawa Red Diamonds (JAP) USD 83,333
	FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022 Urawa Red Diamonds (JAP) USD 83,333

The same process was then repeated for each player selected to participate in the final competition of the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022, regardless of how many minutes they played, with the key criterion being that they were selected in the final squad list.
